A.4. Country or countries in which the organization is active (Paragraph 91(b) of the Operational Directives)

Identify the country or countries in which your organization actively operates. If it operates entirely within one country, indicate which country. If its activities are international, indicate whether it operates globally or in one or more regions, and list the primary countries in which it carries out its activities.

- [x] international (please specify)
  - [x] worldwide
  - [ ] Africa
  - [ ] Arab States
  - [ ] Asia and the Pacific
  - [ ] Europe and North America
  - [ ] Latin America and the Caribbean

Please list the primary country(ies) in which it is active:

United States
B. Organization’s competence, expertise, and experience in the field of safeguarding intangible cultural heritage (Article 9 of the Convention and paragraphs 91(a) and (c) of the Operational Directives)

B.1. Objectives of the organization

Describe the objectives for which your organization was established, which should be in conformity with the spirit of the Convention. If the organization’s primary objectives are other than safeguarding intangible cultural heritage, explain how its safeguarding objectives relate to those larger objectives.

The American Folklore Society (AFS) is the U.S.-based academic, professional, and service organization supporting the field of folk and traditional arts through convenings, publications, research, and advocacy for the study, teaching, and practice of expressive traditions in the U.S. and throughout the world. AFS has published the Journal of American Folklore since its founding in 1888, convenes the largest annual meeting of our field, and manages programs to advance the field, all to underscore the centrality of folklife and expressive culture to individual and community life. AFS embraces an inclusive view of cultural creativity, advocates for respect across cultures, and educates the public and policymakers by amplifying the significance of folklife in our lives. AFS values a deep and engaged connection with the communities with which we collaborate to preserve, document, and promote folk and traditional arts.

The objectives of the American Folklore Society are to stimulate and encourage interest and research in folklore in all its aspects; to aid in the dissemination of the results of such research; to promote responsible application of such research in the broad variety of settings in which folklorists work; to publish and distribute publications, reports and journals; to serve as a bond among those interested in the study of folklore; to advocate for and assist the teaching of folklore and the establishment of folklore curricula and programs at all age levels in all educational contexts; to enhance the professional well-being of the Society’s members; and to engage in such other activities as are consonant with the foregoing purposes.

B.2. Domain(s) in which the organization is active

Tick one or more boxes to indicate the primary domains in which the organization is most active. If its activities involve domains other than those listed, tick ‘other domains’ and indicate which domains are concerned.

- oral traditions and expressions
- performing arts
- social practices, rituals and festive events
- knowledge and practices concerning nature and the universe
- traditional craftsmanship
- other domains - please specify:

Briefly describe below your organization’s work in relation to the domains chosen (if your organization cuts all domains, explain how).

Not to exceed 250 words
Our flagship publication, the Journal of American Folklore, began in 1888 and is one of the oldest and most respected folklore journals in the world, publishing widely on research topics that span the breadth of traditional arts, performance, ritual, and festival all as parts of cultural expression or folklife. We also publish five other journals (Children’s Folklore Review, Digest, The Folklore Historian, Jewish Cultural Studies, and New Directions in Folklore) as well as the AFS Review online newsletter and opinion/essay venue, embedded in the AFS website.

In addition to the quarterly Journal of American Folklore (now including a multimedia site for audio and visual supplements to JAF articles and reviews), AFS publishes 5 additional journals or annuals (Children’s Folklore Review, Digest, The Folklore Historian, Jewish Cultural Studies, New Directions in Folklore); the AFS Review newsletter and opinion/essay venue, embedded in the AFS web site; and the AFS Annual Report. AFS also maintains (in partnership with other institutions in the field) several scholarly communications web sites and tools, including the AFS Ethnographic Thesaurus, the H-Folk listserv for international folklore scholarship, the folklore volume of the MLA International Bibliography, and the Open Folklore portal to open-access materials in the field.

B.3. Primary safeguarding activities in which the organization is involved

Tick one or more boxes to indicate the organization’s primary safeguarding activities. If its activities involve safeguarding measures not listed here, tick ‘other safeguarding measures’ and specify which ones are concerned:

- identification, documentation, research (including inventory-making)
- preservation, protection
- promotion, enhancement
- transmission, formal or non-formal education
- revitalization
- other safeguarding measures – please specify:

B.4. Description of the organization’s activities

Briefly describe the organization’s recent activities and relevant experience in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage, including those demonstrating the capacities of the organization to provide advisory services to the Committee. Relevant documentation may be submitted, if necessary, under section D.3. below.

Not to exceed 550 words

The American Folklore Society:

1. Publishes the quarterly Journal of American Folklore, begun in 1888 and one of the oldest and most respected folklore journals in the world, which publishes the results of folklore research conducted throughout the world

2. Produces an annual meeting each October that brings together more than 700 folklorists from around the world to exchange work and ideas, and to create and strengthen friendships and working relationships

3. Maintains the AFS web site as a means for communication among Society members and between folklorists and the world at large

4. Serves as the hub of our diverse field, developing means of communication and offering professional development opportunities not offered by other organizations

5. Prepares position statements and policy documents on a variety of cultural, educational, and professional issues, as part of an ongoing program of advocacy for traditional cultural expression and the work of folklorists

6. Supports the work of several committees and some 35 interest-group sections
7. Awards prizes, travel stipends, and other forms of recognition and support for outstanding work and best practices
8. Maintains active partnerships with other societies in the American Council of Learned Societies and the National Humanities Alliance
9. Takes a leading role in national and international folklore projects, such as the H-Folk international folklore scholarship listserv and the development of an ethnographic thesaurus, and in international deliberations concerning folklore, intellectual property, and intangible cultural heritage

B.5. Description of the organization’s competence and expertise

Provide information on the personnel and members of the organization, describe their competence and expertise in the domain of intangible cultural heritage, in particular those that demonstrate the capacities of the organization to provide advisory services to the Committee, and explain how they acquired such competence. Documentation of such competences may be submitted, if necessary, under section D.3. below.

Not to exceed 200 words

The American Folklore Society (AFS) is an established professional community that unites those doing the work in and beyond the field of folklore to strengthen, support, and improve the understanding of the folk and traditional arts. As the national and international organization networking the folk and traditional arts, AFS is uniquely positioned to access a broad professional network of scholars, educators, and librarians at colleges and universities; professionals in arts and cultural organizations; and community members involved in cultural heritage work. As a convener across disciplines, practices, and areas of study as well as interfacing with the public at large, the organization strengthens its membership and the field and through publications, advocacy for the field, and consultation on issues of cultural policy and documentation best practices.

AFS encourages and disseminates research, promotes the responsible application of research, issues publications, and advocates for the continued study and teaching of expressive culture. AFS embraces an inclusive view of cultural creativity, advocates for respect across cultures, and educates the public and policymakers by amplifying the significance of traditional culture.

C. Organization’s experiences in cooperating with communities, groups and intangible cultural heritage practitioners (Paragraph 91(d) of the Operational Directives)

Briefly describe below how your organization collaborates with communities, groups and, where appropriate, individuals that create, practise and transmit intangible cultural heritage.

Not to exceed 350 words

Our members, whether they work in academic institutions or in the public sector, cooperate with communities, groups, and intangible cultural heritage protectors on a daily basis, both in their ethnographic fieldwork and their work to communicate knowledge about folklore through teaching and publications. Much of the proceedings of our annual conferences and the-contents of our quarterly journal are directly based in these cooperations. The Society itself has served since 2002 as an accredited NGO member of the World Intellectual Property Organization's Intergovernmental Committee on Intellectual Property and Genetic Resources, Traditional Knowledge, and Folklore. For more information, please see the Society’s web site at www.afsnet.org.
D. Documentation of the operational capacities of the organization (Paragraph 91(e) of the Operational Directives)

D.1. Members and personnel

Provide proof of the participation of the members of your organization. It may take diverse forms such as a list of directors, a list of personnel and statistical information on the quantity and categories of the members; a comprehensive membership roster usually need not be submitted.

Please attach supporting documents, labelled ‘Section D.1.’

D.2. Recognized legal personality

If your organization has a charter, articles of incorporation, by-laws or similar establishing documents, a copy should be attached. If, under the applicable domestic law, your organization has a legal personality recognized through some means other than an establishing document (for instance, through a published notice in an official gazette or journal), please provide documentation showing how that legal personality was established.

Please attach supporting documents, labelled ‘Section D.2.’

D.3. Duration of existence and activities

State your organization’s date of founding as it appears in the supporting documentation establishing its legal personality (section D.2. above).

Founded in 1888; incorporated in 1978

If it is not already clearly indicated in the documentation provided under section D.2., submit documentation proving that the organization has existed for at least four years at the time it requests accreditation. Provide documentation showing that it has carried out appropriate safeguarding activities during that time, including those described above in section B.4. Supplementary materials such as books, CDs, DVDs or similar publications cannot be taken into consideration and should not be submitted.

Please attach supporting documents, labelled ‘Section D.3.’

E. Membership in the ICH NGO Forum

Indicate below whether your organization wishes to join the ICH NGO Forum. Please note that membership is contingent upon the accreditation of your organization by the General Assembly of the States Parties to the 2003 Convention.

 vaccinated Yes
coughy No
The request must include the name and signature of the person empowered to sign it on behalf of the organization requesting accreditation. Requests without a signature cannot be considered.

Biographies of Key Leadership:

President Marilyn M. White (https://americanfolkloresociety.org/about/board/marilyn-white/)
Dr. Marilyn M. White is a retired Professor of Anthropology at Kean University in NJ, where she taught from 1985 to 2011. She previously taught at Western Kentucky University for eight years.

For the American Folklore Society, she served on the Executive Board and was an early member and then Chair of the Cultural Diversity Committee. She also served on the following committees: Nominating, Zora Neale Hurston Prize, Gerald L. Davis Travel Stipend, Américo Paredes Prize. She is the long-term President of the Association of African and African American Folklorists. She is on the board of the New Jersey Folklore Society and of City Lore (NYC). She is also a member of the Middle Atlantic Folklife Association and previously served on its board and as Vice President. She has served on folk arts panels for the NEA, as well as for a number of state arts agencies, and as an evaluator for folk arts apprenticeships or programs in New Jersey and Kentucky.

Dr. White received her Ph.D. in Anthropology (Folklore) from The University of Texas at Austin, her MA in Folklore from Indiana University, and her BA in English from Hampton University.

She has several publications and has presented papers and organized panels and forums at numerous annual meetings of the American Folklife Society. She served on the Editorial Board of the Encyclopedia of Women’s Folklore and Folklife (2008). She has given a number of lectures for various community, university, and school groups in the United States and abroad.

Her research interests include African American folklore, family folklore, stratification, jokes and humor, and she has been conducting long-term research in Little Cayman.

President-Elect Amy Skillman

Amy Skillman is the Academic Director of the MA in Cultural Sustainability at Goucher College. Throughout her career, she has worked in non-profit organizations, higher education institutions, and government agencies to design programs that sustain artistic traditions while striving for cultural equity. Highlights of her work include a 20-year initiative with newcomer women using theater and story circles to foster leadership and break down barriers caused by prejudices and inequities; a Grammy-nominated recording of Old Time fiddlers in Missouri; and a co-curated traveling exhibition examining the role of folk arts as a catalyst for social change. An avid participant in AFS since 1978, Amy served on the Executive Board (2009-2011), the Nominating Committee, several prize and travel committees, and was co-convener of the Public Programs Section and co-founder of the Creative Writing Section. She is a recipient of the Botkin Prize and a member of the AFS Fellows. Amy received her MA in Folklore from UCLA and a self-designed BA in Cultural Minorities and the Immigrant Experience from St. Lawrence University.

Executive Director Jessica A. Turner

As Executive Director of the American Folklore Society, Jessica A. Turner nurtures a broad network of folklorists working in universities, public institutions, and nonprofit organizations. She raises funds for and coordinates the Society’s initiatives to benefit the field and manages the work of the Society’s Executive Board. Turner works with national organizations such as the American Council of Learned Societies, American Folklife Center, National Council for Traditional Arts, National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities, National Humanities Alliance, Smithsonian Center for Folklife and Cultural Heritage, and the World Intellectual Property Organization.

Turner conducts fieldwork in Appalachia and China bridging academic and public folklore, ethnomusicology, museums, and heritage studies; she previously served as director of the Birthplace of Country Music Museum (Bristol, Tennessee/Virginia) where she helped secure decisive funding for the Smithsonian-affiliate Museum and led the museum’s interpretive design and development. She cultivated the Museum’s initiatives in collections and interpretation, helped to create partnerships with the Smithsonian and other institutions, and was a key advocate for the Museum’s work within its local community. Turner’s fieldwork-based projects have resulted in public programs including written works, exhibitions, media productions, workshops, festivals, presentations and a wide variety of community programs. Turner’s work centers around the exploration of creative expression, identity and place, and the multifaceted dimensions of heritage. Turner received her PhD from Indiana University’s Department of Folklore and Ethnomusicology in 2010 with a dissertation focused on ethnic minority performances and heritage tourism in Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region in southwestern China.

Fellows of the American Folklore Society (https://americanfolkloresociety.org/our-community/afs-fellows/)

Current officers of the Fellows:
Mary Hufford (The Ohio State University and LiKEN), President
Robert Baron (Goucher College), Vice-President
Solimar Otero (Indiana University), Secretary

Established in 1960, the Fellows of the American Folklore Society is an honorary body of folklorists, whose election to the Fellows signifies their outstanding contributions to the field. Members of the Fellows have produced a significant number of important articles, books, and other scholarly productions or exhibitions on folklore, and have provided meritorious service to the Society and the discipline of folklore studies. In addition to its honorary function, the Fellows sponsor activities to advance folklore studies, including mentoring programs for students, plenary sessions at the annual meeting, and special awards. The Fellows meet annually during the AFS annual meeting, usually inducting new members at that time.
