B. Contribution of the organization to the implementation of the Convention at the national and international levels (Chapter III and Article 19 of the Convention, paragraph 156 of the Operational Directives)¹

Distinguish between completed activities and ongoing activities contributing to the eight thematic areas of the Convention’s Overall Results Framework², as well as to the preparation of periodic reports, nominations, proposals and requests under the Convention’s international cooperation mechanisms. If you have not contributed, this should be indicated. Also describe any obstacles or difficulties that your organization may have encountered in such participation.

B.1. Describe your organization’s contribution to strengthening institutional and human capacities for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.

The members regularly conduct workshops with academic institutions, cultural organizations and also Government Agencies like Administrative Training Institute, management and business schools, tourism institutions on subjects like safeguarding ICH, contribution of ICH in sustainable development, creative economy, cultural tourism, heritage management, heritage sensitive commercialization, artist rights and ethics of business with traditional practitioners, cultural mapping and inventorying, technology and safeguarding, etc. Online training workshops have also been held with World Craft Council, ICHCAP, British Council, WIPO, UNESCO, ICCROM for people from different countries.

² For further information on the Overall Results Framework, please refer to the Chapter 8 of the Basic Texts of the 2003 Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage: https://ich.unesco.org/en/basic-texts-00503
Contact Base specialises in capacity building of community based institutions for safeguarding of ICH. We have trained several artist collectives (formal and informal) in heritage management, heritage commercialization, use of social media and digital tools, storytelling, IP and ICH etc. To counter the crisis caused by COVID 19, we enhanced capacities of cultural practitioners in the digital medium. Micro-enterprises in the craft sector have been trained to participate in E-commerce ventures (from uploading photographs and information on their inventory to order management and delivery). The performing artists on the other hand have been trained in purposive usage of social media, so that they can document their cultural offerings and share the same. Performing artists now frequently conduct live programmes in social media channels, which apart from enhancing their popularity, has acted as a source of livelihood in the tough times of the pandemic. We have also built capacity of folk musicians in music recording and few now have their studios.

B.2. Describe your organization’s participation in activities related to the transmission of and education for intangible cultural heritage. Explain, in particular, how your organization cooperates with communities, groups and, where relevant, individuals.

A key outcome of our projects with Government of West Bengal and Rajasthan in partnership with UNESCO has been developing eco system for skill transmission of ICH within the tradition bearer families. Senior cultural practitioners have developed curriculums of Bhawaiya, Baul, Chau, Langa and Manganiyar traditions. Tools like audio visuals, textual documentation of songs, books explaining different aspects of dance and music have been developed by the communities. The following link is an example of audiovisual toolkit developed by Chau Masters in 2022 (Chau is inscribed in UNESCO Representative List of ICH) (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=90J_TtpSAM1)

We have designed toolkits for use by teachers in formal education system and have organised programs and workshops in hundreds of schools and colleges in this reporting period. Children from countries outside India have also participated in online programs during and after the pandemic. A sample heritage awareness toolkit for learners in Rajasthan is available online (https://rb.gy/znrzdv). The toolkit has activities for young children for learning through drawing and colouring. Various schools and colleges regularly take the students to different rural locales to familiarize them with the cultural offerings and interact with the tradition bearers to learn more. Taking online heritage education classes has become a new avenue of income for some tradition bearers. We have developed online mobile application Unique Bengal for engaging students to learn about ICH.

In the post-secondary level, we have linked craft practitioners with design institutes, which have acted as a catalyst in bringing product and design diversification while retaining the heritage components. Several institutions (colleges) now regularly organising workshops for sensitisation of students on ICH.

B.3. Describe your organization’s participation in the inventorying and research of intangible cultural heritage. Explain, in particular, how your organization cooperates with communities, groups and, where relevant, individuals.

In 2022 we have documented traditional culture and lifestyle of 17 indigenous communities living in Arunachal Pradesh in India and equipped them with tools (18 films, website (http://www.arunachallivingheritage.com/)) and illustrated book to promote their story of nature-culture journey (U.S. Ambassador's Fund for Cultural Preservation). In 2019, German Consulate Kolkata supported research on revival of Shola (white cork) tradition (www.sholacraft.com). Since 2020 we extensively worked with the cultural practitioners of western Rajasthan and have field recorded around 300 songs of Langa and Manganiyar folk musicians, which are available in the mobile application named Safar Tunes. We have also documented the musical intricacies, heritage and practice of Langa and Manganiyar folk music in consultation with the senior Gurus (https://cms.rajasthan safar.com/wpcontent/uploads/2020/10/Langa-Manganiyar-Handbook-Book_Final.pdf). In West Bengal, we have field recorded around 3000 songs of rural folk musicians, which are available in the mobile application named Folks of Bengal and also on other online platforms like iTunes, Spotify, Saavn, Amazon music, etc. We have also released CD of Jhumur folk songs, where folk musicians sang new compositions created by contemporary Jhumur poets. We have also created websites which are updated by the tradition bearers. These includehttps://baulfakiri.com/, https://www.puruliachau.com/, https://bengalpatachitra.com/, http://www.rcchbengal.com. In collaboration with multidisciplinary experts from Coventry University and three communities (Baul, Chau, Patachitra traditions) we researched heritage sensitive IP and and digital tools for commercialization of ICH (https://www.hipams.org) and the project resulted in improved viability as well as resilience of the practitioners. A toolkit has been developed on community planning for sustainable development through ICH and widely disseminated across countries.
B.4. Describe your organization’s participation in developing policies, as well as legal and administrative measures, for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage. Explain, in particular, how your organization cooperates with communities, groups and, where relevant, individuals.

We have worked with the Patent Information Centres, Department of Science for registering Geographical Indication (GI) for six craft traditions. We have also assisted 122 tradition bearers from six craft traditions (Dokra, Chau Mask, Patachitra, Terracotta, Wooden Mask and Madur) in getting registered as GI users. As part of the HIPAMS (Heritage-sensitive Intellectual Property & Marketing Strategies) project (https://www.hipamsindia.org/), we drafted two policy briefs, Rural Tourism in India with A special focus ON West Bengal: Policies for Empowering Traditional Artists through Rural Tourism and Intellectual Property Rights in India for Traditional Cultural Expressions: Recommendations for training and support FOR traditional artists. These have been used in drafting tourism and IP policies at state and national level. The recommendations have been drafted to enhance the rights of the cultural practitioners on promotion and circulation of their creative produce and to endow them with better negotiating strategies to encash benefits premised on copyright. We have also developed Art Codes of Codes of Ethics with the artist communities and these have been used by them in drafting contracts and business linkages. The Tourism Department, Government of Rajasthan and Department of MSME&T, Government of West Bengal have imbibed our model Art for Life linking, ICH, practitioner and habitat development (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jUGXV_Hnwrg) in development of rural cultural tourism and MSMEs in creative sector. In 2021 West Bengal Government scaled up the Rural Craft and Cultural Hub Project to cover 50000 tradition bearers. Department of Tourism, Government of India has also used the model of promoting village tourism as a strategy of post pandemic recovery (#GIlocal #RestartTourism, Incredible India Weekend Getaway). The Prime Minister of India appreciated the village of Patachitra painters for the community’s leadership and resilience (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aAjpKVUbHA&i=2s). The West Bengal Government has invested in building folk art centres for artist collectives in 10+ villages.

B.5. Describe your organization’s participation in promoting the role of intangible cultural heritage and its safeguarding in society. Explain, in particular, how your organization cooperates with communities, groups and, where relevant, individuals.

Our organization has been working for over two decades with rural and indigenous communities for safeguarding their ICH, strengthening their pride and recognition, fostering social inclusion and economic empowerment. The work has led to revitalization of 30+ art forms and now covers 60K traditional practitioners. As an outcome, the overall quality of life, health and hygiene standards, education and socio-economic parameters of cultural practitioners have significantly improved. There has been reduction in unsafe migration in search of work. Improved mobility and education among women has been a key outcome. Most of the tradition bearers are from marginalised communities and development of community museums and village festivals have brought forth transformative change. The impact of work was clearly visible during Covid when these communities, instead of desperation due to disruption in market conduits, invested time and energy in training young people, documenting their ICH and innovating and developing new cultural products. These ranged from songs, dance productions, paintings to painted cloth and paper mache masks for use for Covid protection. Seeing the impact the West Bengal Government has invested in building folk art centres for artist collectives in 10+ villages.

B.6. Describe your organization’s participation in raising awareness about intangible cultural heritage. Explain, in particular, how your organization cooperates with communities, groups and, where relevant, individuals.

Our activities have been conducive in mainstreaming traditional cultural practices. Even a decade back, community culture was seen as a non-significant element and artists were treated as ‘daily unskilled labour’. Culture & Development was not in development vocabulary. We created a network of public and developmental organizations, conducted knowledge sharing sessions and showcased practical evidence reflecting the potential of culture and culture-based practices in bringing holistic rural development. At present, over 500 cultural practitioners from rural West Bengal and around 100 cultural practitioners from western Rajasthan have travelled across India to present their creative offerings. Many among them have also transcended national boundaries and reached global audience with their cultural products. These tradition bearers, upon getting digital training, are now using social media accounts and promoting their art and crafts through digital platforms. We have also sensitized various tourism stakeholders regarding the rural cultural destinations. We have conducted familiarisation tours and workshops covering 200+ tourist guides and travel agents in three states, sensitising them on responsible cultural tourism. We also conduct annual village festivals celebrating local ICH. These festivals attract huge tourist footfall and have been crucial in giving visibility and recognition to local ICH and the practitioners. Since 2011, we are participating in WOMEX, the largest international music expo to highlight the potential of Indian folk music to global music stakeholders. This awareness raising has resulted in Rina Das Baul, folk musician from Bengal, getting invited to perform in the main event of WOMEX in 2022. During the pandemic we supported daily online programs on ICH to engage the artists. Following the pandemic we have organised several festivals, school awareness programs, village festivals to rejuvenate the art forms. We curated Folk Safar festival in West Bengal, Rajasthan and Goa in 2021, 2022 and held Sur Jahan every year since 2011 except 2021, 2022 (www.surjahan.com)

B.7. Describe your organization’s participation in facilitating the engagement of communities, groups and individuals, as well as other stakeholders, for safeguarding intangible cultural heritage.

Not to exceed 250 words

Our flagship initiative Art for Life (AFL) has established a proven model of development of eco systems for community-led safeguarding of ICH. AFL promotes Village, Artist, and Art together and has evolved the process of art and culture-led rural development. Our model is also being studied by IIT-IIT and has been adopted by state governments of West Bengal and Rajasthan to bring ICH-led development. Our work has led to safeguarding & strengthened identity and pride of marginalised communities. Income and quality of life has improved manifold leading to poverty alleviation and reduction of migration. Women have been empowered with increased income, mobility and social status. Artist collectives registered as community organizations are sustaining training and promotional activities beyond project span. Community-led cultural tourism integrating intangible, natural and built heritage has led to greater ownership and interest for safeguarding and preservation in the heritage sites and provided a new positive identity as centres of culture and creativity, rather than that of deprived rural villages. Village festivals are getting organized to celebrate local heritage. We are also building capacities of artist clusters to use IP tools like Geographical Indication (GI) and labels like Craft mark. We are working with youth and teachers to explore how ICH can be integrated in education and used for building peace. We are a field-driven organization working with the local communities. Our extensive field knowledge has enabled us to understand that each cultural heritage has a unique history and practice and hence deserves a unique strategy for development. To make the developmental parameters contextually suited, we incorporate local community members, so that they can become protagonists in their own process of development and chart out a strategy best suited to meet their local needs and challenges.
