To vitalize and stimulate oral storytelling by encouraging everyone to tell their stories, in local communities, among children, adults and elderly in this way new stories are collected and preserved. Shedding knowledge of fairy tales, legends and folktales by educational activities in schools at all levels, and by performances and workshops for adults and by arranging a storytelling festival. To safeguard the narrative traditions of the Land of Legends (which is three municipalities in this region of Sweden) by pointing out places in the surrounding landscape connected to different stories/tales and to provide storytelling at the site and by running the Museum of Legends. To support and encourage research on oral storytelling. Not to exceed 750 words; do not attach additional information

The storytelling network of Kronoberg runs; The Museum of Legends, The Land of Legends, The largest yearly storytelling festival in Scandinavia, Ljungby storytelling festival all with the same goal, to enhance, preserve and safeguard our oral traditions by:

Storytelling performances/guided tours; in the museum but also in the landscape of The Land of Legends and at the festival. This is also a performing art.

Educational activities; at the museum but also in schools. We are using the tales and the storytelling as a pedagogical method (following the Swedish curriculums) and working/teaching at all school levels. We are holding courses for youths and adults and have two university courses at the museum together with the Gotland University.

Festival: Since 1990, every year we have had a storytelling festival, which is local, national and international. We have about 50 performing artists telling stories with variant contents. We also host a Nordic youth camp for the next generation of storytellers. We try to highlight different kind of storytelling traditions, 2013 we highlight the roman oral tradition and some of their craftsmanship.

Knowledge and practices concerning nature and the universe: We have identified, documented and marked 80 places in the landscape (The Land of Legends), which has a particular story/tale connected to them, by road signs, maps, story cabinets at the actual place (the cabinets consist of a story that the visitor can read in Swedish, English or German, a painting which is connected to the story), an app (you can listen to the story in your phone) geocaching, performances, activities and excursions. Every summer we do a program in The Land of Legends, with performances open for and with the public. Many of the legends we tell are connected to knowledge and practices concerning nature and the universe. Another example is the documentation of stories connected to the serious storm in 2005 that caused huge damages in southern Sweden – the result was a book called Stormen (the Storm).

Based on documentation and research (in archives and amongst informants) several books have been published with old tales but also with new stories of today. We work together with Linneus University. They have followed some of our projects and done studies and research on how our methods work.

We collect and document oral stories from groups and individuals by recording them. The participants are both professional storytellers but also people in general. The stories are made available for everyone to listen to at our website. People can also upload their stories directly on our website.

Traditional craftsmanship: We tell stories about craftsmanship, often together with craftsmen both professionals and amateurs. They perform the craftsmanship and we tell, sometimes done as a workshop together with the audience.

Social practices, rituals and festive events: We often tell stories about it both at the museum but also at festive events for examples Christmas parties, midsummer events etc.

Our organization has become a center for storytellers in Sweden and helps others to form networks/or connect with storytellers in Sweden and abroad.

Projects: During 2012, 2013 we have/are working with projects such as: “Museum education for those with special needs” (students with learning disabilities of different kinds) “Stories for memories” (working with elderly at care homes with or without dementia) “Meetings with stories” (working with “young” dementia patients and their relatives) “Land of Legend- an arena for stories and meetings” (an EU-project on how to develop the countryside and highlight the stories of it, with modern technology).

We are active in the work of implementing the Convention with the Institute for Language and Folklore. We participate in the list work of the node; “oral traditions and expressions, including language as a vehicle of the intangible cultural heritage, social practices, rituals and festive events, knowledge and practices concerning the universe”. The node supports the coordinating authority and is connected to different actors in the network, representing conservation, documentation, transfer of knowledge, training, research and practice.

Our engagement has resulted in the Regional Council’s consideration to give us a regional assignment regarding the safeguarding of oral traditions.

Information on relevant competence and expertise among the staff and members of the network:

* Oral traditions that has been inherited
* Education in storytelling, formal and non-formal

7. The organization's experiences cooperating with communities, groups and intangible cultural heritage practitioners

The Committee will evaluate whether NGOs requesting accreditation 'cooperate in a spirit of mutual respect with communities, groups and, where appropriate, individuals that create, maintain and transmit intangible cultural heritage' (Criterion D). Please briefly describe such experiences here.

Not to exceed 350 words; do not attach additional information

Examples of groups we are working together with:

Our NGO has always worked together with communities, groups and individuals in a spirit of mutual respect to create, maintain, and transmit intangible cultural heritage. This has resulted in that many local storytellers are members in our organization but also people from other parts of Sweden have joined our network.

At our website everyone can upload their own stories. At the festival we always have someone, community-based, telling their life story. We have a special event during the festival that we call an "open-stage" where anyone who likes can perform. We often do "Storytelling café's", its main purpose is to create a forum for community-based storytellers and individuals who wish to tell stories. These cafés have been done during several years and we also contribute to the development of such events in communities. We also encourage the audience to participate at our summer programs, and some performances are done by community-based artists. We also arrange events where the audience visits people's homes. Together with the inhabitants we do a storytelling event.

We have highlighted storytelling traditions belonging to groups that unfortunately have been overlooked in history, for example Romany and Sami. This has been done both at the festival but also at other occasions.

Together with the Swedish local heritage movement, (the largest heritage NGO in Sweden, based in the communities) we have done several projects. They have “given” us stories and we have helped them to highlight their legends and stories connected to places where they operate. In these communities the “Storytelling café’s” are very popular.

The NGO for traditional handicraft has for many years been one of our partners. Connected to the making of handicraft are several stories and tales. We work together with the traditional handicraft association to bring forward these stories for example done at workshops in communities.

Sweden’s largest adult liberal education association, ABF, do study circles in communities. We cooperate with ABF regarding study circles concerning oral traditions, they are also a partner in the Ljungby storytelling festival.
